Hawaii Respite Services

Purpose

H.C.R. No. 187, H.D. 1 requested the Executive Office on Aging to conduct an inventory of the respite services provided in Hawaii that are supported by federal, state, and county funds, including a description of each program and the amount and source of funding. The Executive Office on Aging contracted the University of Hawaii-Manoa School of Social Work to compile a list of respite agencies available in the State of Hawaii pursuant to this resolution. The Executive Office on Aging would like to thank Felix C. Blumhardt, Ph.D., for preparing this report.

Definition

Respite services are defined as any type of service that provides temporary relief from caregiving. It can be provided in the home or in facility settings such as adult day care centers, residential care homes for the elderly, and nursing homes. Services may range from nursing and personal care to household and yard chores or simply supervision and companionship may be provided. The outcomes expected from respite care are considered to be primarily for caregivers. For instance, employed caregivers may use respite or adult day care to allow them to continue their employment. Retired caregivers may use respite services to give them an opportunity to keep medical appointments or run errands.

Methods

Lists of possible respite services were compiled from several sources: (1) service provider lists obtained from the Area Agencies on Aging, (2) internet searches, and (3) a cross-check between agency lists and website and internet searches. A potential list of providers was compiled and then agencies or providers were contacted by telephone throughout the state in an effort to obtain information regarding the type of respite provided, the method of payment, whether or not the agency had a waiting list, and the population served by the agency. Any additional information that the service provider wished to add about the program was also noted at the time. The final list was sent to each of the Area Agencies on Aging for review and to correct any omissions or errors.

Results

The final list presented in the tables that follow shows that there are 46 respite providers in Oahu, 15 providers in Maui County, 5 in Kauai and 21 for Hawaii County. At first glance this would indicate that there are an adequate number of respite care providers throughout the state and indeed this is the feedback we have been receiving from senior service providers in general. However feedback from potential consumers and caregivers indicates that (1) they don't know about these service providers or how to locate them, (2) that there are few service providers that can accommodate the needs of low income families and for those providers that accept Medicaid there are often waiting lists, and (3) there is an ongoing need for special respite or day care services for people with Alzheimer's disease and/or other forms of dementia.

Conclusions

There are many additional questions that could be asked of respite care providers including whether or not they offer weekend or evening respite, whether they can manage medical problems (such as intubation or incontinence) and whether or not any transportation or escort services are associated with the provider. If a website or information booklet is being prepared for consumers themselves, it would be desirable to include all of these remaining questions. However it is beyond the purview of this study to prepare a consumer product. Though not intended for consumers, the list can provide useful information to agencies who serve the elder population in Hawaii.
